The 5th grade TAG students just finished a career project where they explored a future career by learning about their career personalities through the Holland Code career quiz. They researched steps to get to their career including internships and college options. Lastly, they wrote interview questions and found someone in their own field who was willing to conduct an interview with them over the phone/zoom or in person. This was the first professional phone call and interview some of these students have conducted and although they were nervous, they all did great and said that they learned a lot.
